

Maggie Beneke

Shayla Collins

JOIN US! FAMILY CONVERSATIONS

On Disability & Race in Early Childhood

We cannot talk about disability honestly and fully without talking about race.
– Lydia X. Z. Brown (2020)

Maggie Beneke and Shayla Collins from the University of Washington College of Education are inviting BIPOC families who have young children with disabilities to join us for a conversation about advancing disability justice and racial justice in early childhood education.

Specifically, we will discuss:

- Children’s and families’ experiences in early learning programs
- Experiences organizing and advocating for change
- Investment priorities in early childhood education

This is a research study that will directly impact changes in the UW Special Education Teacher Preparation Program, as well as inform recommendations for statewide educational investments.

If you are interested, please register here and we will follow up with details: <https://forms.gle/CAtsJH3LBVLseQnx9>

Virtual conversation via Zoom (75 minutes)

August 3-14, 2020

Multiple times to join the conversation

$50 gift card for participation

If you are interested in joining us, please register here:

<https://forms.gle/CAtsJH3LBVLseQnx9>

Questions?

Contact:

Maggie Beneke

beneke@uw.edu

or

Shayla Collins

sd24@uw.edu