

DESIGNING FOR NON-PROFITS, A Lesson In Listening

LISA MCCLELLAN, AIA LEED AP

Lisa received her Master's in Architecture from the University of Oregon in 1995 and promptly drove across the country to rural Pennsylvania where she designed housing for farmworkers while serving as a Design Corps fellow. Over the past 20 years, her work has explored the power of architecture to promote a mission, build communities and enrich lives; resulting in more than 40 successful projects for non-profit organizations in housing, healthcare, social service and economic development. She is a principal at Scott |Edwards Architecture in Portland, Oregon and a leader in the firm's community-based design.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 2019, 5:30 P.M.

WHITE BOX, WHITE STAG BLOCK, PORTLAND, OREGON

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON

College of Design

School of Architecture and Environment
Department Architecture
White Stag Block, Portland, Oregon

503-412-3718 | aaapdx@uoregon.edu

An equal-opportunity, affirmative-action institution committed to cultural diversity and compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act