Hello, Pacific Symphony Volunteers!

You are invited to a virtual music jeopardy event on Wednesday, June 24th at 5:30 pm!

Many of you have demonstrated such wonderful knowledge of music through our twice weekly challenges, we thought it would be fun to join together for a test of our collective musical knowledge! We would love to see as many of your happy faces as possible. Whether you are a music whiz, or just want to visit and chat, we invite you to join us!

Here are the Zoom details – please make sure to email me back if you are planning on joining as we want to create teams for this event.

I would also like to announce Pacific Symphony's AXP@Home for students ages 7th-9th Grade! Developed by our Education and Community Engagement Department, AXP@Home is a summer program for kids who want to experience the arts in a deeper way. This year, students will participate in remote workshops focused on instrumental and vocal music, dance, theater, visual art and so much more! They will meet with Maestro Carl St.Clair and other symphony musicians throughout the fun and interactive sessions! The first session starts today, but AXP@Home still has some openings for the session starting July 6th. Be sure to tell your family and friends about this great opportunity for kids to have a wonderful time while growing creatively this summer!

I encourage you to check out our website and read the attached Introducing AXP@Home flyer to learn more:

I look forward to seeing many of you next week for our Zoom Music Trivia Night!

Until then, please stay well. Stay safe. Know how much we miss you.

Warm regards,

Abby
