Competition Team
Handbook

2023-24

Objective:

Competition allows students to further their dance education at a higher, more competitive, performance level. It not only allows our dancers to further their training and push them to the next level, but also provides them with more opportunities for discipline, structure, and leadership moments. We train our dancers to be well-rounded not only in their technique and dance education, but as people and leaders in today's world.

Required Classes:

Ballet Technique: Competition students are required to take ballet technique. No exceptions. Ballet is the basis for all styles of dance. Students will be placed in a ballet technique class based on age and technique level. Any colored leotard, pink tights, ballet shoes, and a bun are expected of all ballet technique students.

Hip Hop: Students placed in a hip hop group are also required to take a Rec Hip Hop class.

Commitment:

- Dancers must be at every practice. If you have to miss a practice (ok'd only by your group instructor) for any reason, you must get with another group member to learn what you missed before the next practice. Do not ask your instructor. You will be expected to know what you missed when you return.
- Dancers are only allowed TWO unexcused, absences from Ballet Technique. Missing a technique class for a dance related function, school event where a grade is given (i.e. music concert), death, or family emergency is counted as excused. If dancers are missing more than the two unexcused absences, they have the opportunity to make-up class during another scheduled technique class. Please speak with Kinze regarding those make-up classes.
- Dancers are REQUIRED to perform in all the assigned recitals.
- Dancers are REQUIRED to perform at the annual Competition Showcase (Sunday, February 18th).
- Dancers are REQUIRED to attend 3 regional competitions. If you need to miss a competition, you will be charged a fee for having to change the routine.

 - March 8th – 10th | Celebrity Dance Competition | Ames, IA
 - March 22nd – 24th | The Movement Dance Competition | Clive, IA
 - April 4th – 7th | Bravo Dance Competition | Des Moines, IA
- NEW! Groups will be chosen to attend 1 national competition based on the success of the 3 regionals attended throughout the season. Heather & Kinze will decide these groups once regionals have concluded.

Teacher – Parent Partnership

When parents and teachers work together, children tend to perform better.

1. Establish positive contact with the teachers. Let the teacher know that you want your child to have the best experience possible. Ask if there is any way you can help. Establishing a positive relationship will make it much easier to talk later, if a problem arises.
2. Show appreciation. When teachers do something you like, let them know about it. Teaching and creating choreography for competition is a difficult job, and most teachers hear from parents only when they want to complain. Your encouragement will help the teacher do a better job.
3. Don't put the dancer in the middle. Too often, parents share disapproval of a teacher with their children. When they complain about poor choreography or criticize their teacher's methods or decisions, the young dancers are put in a bind. How motivated will a child be to work hard to learn choreography that his/her parents believe is bad? How might such negative thinking affect his/her love of dance? Divided loyalties do not make it easy for a child to do his/her best. On the other hand, parents who support the teacher make it easier for children to put their wholehearted effort into learning to dance. If you think your child's teacher is not handling the situation well, keep your thoughts to yourself and ask for a private meeting with the teacher to express concerns.
4. Don't give instructions during a competition or class. Do not give your child instructions about how to dance or perform. It can be very confusing for a child to hear someone other than the teacher offering advice at the competition. NEVER give advice or criticism to another team member. Trust your instructor and let them handle the class and performance as they see best. Feel free to share your ideas with the teachers but let them decide whether to use your advice. Making such decisions is a privilege that they have earned by making a commitment to your child.

5. Be positive with your child. Perhaps the most important thing you can do is be there for your child. Competitive dance can be stressful – the last thing a young dancer needs is a critic at home. Be a cheerleader for your child. Focus on the positive thing he/she is doing and leave correcting mistakes to the teacher. Let the child know that you support him/her without reservation, regardless of how well he/she scores.
6. Support the entire team. Praise all the dancers from your child's school. Let them know when you think they do something well. We DO NOT TOLERATE anyone speaking badly about one another.
7. Encourage other parents to respect the process. Show respect for other schools and their teachers and encourage other parents to do so as well. If a parent begins to berate another school or teacher, gently say, "that's not the way we do things here."

Our commitment to you....

We are here to offer your child confidence and a sense of self. We are here to further your child's education in dance and offer you a great experience. Every time they step into those lights, they learn something about performing: how they work under pressure, how to think if something goes wrong, how to stay focused, and how to work as an integral part of a group. We are here to support our dancers and our school.

Studio Policies for Competition Days

- Dancers must arrive at least 1 ½ hours prior to their first performance in FULL costume, hair, and make-up.
- No recording devices, video cameras, or flash photography are allowed, as it goes against the rules of most competitions and could result in disqualification.
- No one is allowed to hang out backstage as an overall courtesy to those who are performing. Aside from the fact that it is unprofessional, it can be a danger for the performers and those hanging out when quick crossovers occur or when the performers are entering and exiting the stage.
- Applause and enthusiasm are terrific, but no yelling (including dancers' names). Cheering is generally not appropriate for theatrical performances. Dance competition is not a little league. Audience screams are a distraction to the performer and for the judges who must be focused on the stage. It also doesn't set a classy image for your studio.

- Parents need to encourage, not discourage, the children.
- A team represents the personality and spirit of the studio. Good behavior and sportsmanship are the number one priority.
- No one may make derogatory statements about other dancers or studios.
- Parents and dancers in the audience should not leave the auditorium when their own performance is over. Show respect for the other performers by exiting during appropriate breaks in the program. Try never to leave while dancers are on stage. Honor their efforts, they don't walk out on you.
- Dancers and their parents must accept the judging results.
- Any questions or concerns on judging results should be brought to the studio director. No one is to approach or confront the judges.
- All dances must accept their awards graciously with a huge "Thank You".
- All dancers are REQUIRED to stay for the awards ceremony.

7. I will respect the authority of the judges and competition dancers during the competitions.
