Hurricane Dorian Relief: How You Can Help

UPDATED SEPTEMBER 5, 2019 AT 11:00 AM

1) Green Turtle Cay Hurricane Recovery Fund

FCEP Past-President Dr. John Shedd is already down in the Bahamas delivering supplies and coordinating efforts. He has set up a charity called Green Turtle Cay Hurricane Recovery Fund, which is accepting donations and providing updates—including lists of needed items—through a Go Fund Me page.

DONATE NOW to Green Turtle Cay Hurricane Recovery Fund

Read about Dr. Shedd's efforts and experience in the Bahamas

2) Bahamas Online Resource Center

The Bahamas government has set up a resource page for Hurricane Dorian relief efforts. The page—which will be updated frequently—contains:

- A list of approved and trusted partners to donate to
- Places in Florida to drop off supplies
- A list of requested goods
- Important relief supplies documents

VISIT RESOURCE CENTER NOW

3) Direct Relief Charity

Direct Relief is #3 on Charity Navigator's 'Top 10 List of Charities 2019' and is responding to Hurricane Dorian. You can donate online and read through updates on relief efforts. Direct Relief is in contact with the Bahamian minister of health, who has requested medicine and medical supply support.

DONATE NOW to Direct Relief Charity

Learn more about Direct Relief

4) Operation Airdrop

Registered pilots who'd like to help by transporting supplies to the Bahamas should register with Operation Airdrop now. Operation Airdrop was founded in the wake of Hurricane Harvey and has been responding to disasters ever since.

REGISTER YOUR AIRCRAFT NOW with Operation Airdrop

FOLLOW THEM ON FACEBOOK for real-time updates

According to a Facebook update 16 hours ago, Operation Airdrop is "anticipating a more scaled back, specialized response" due to "an airspace restriction (issued in the Bahamas) for the next week that requires direct approval from the government to operate private flights." Operation Airdrop is working on obtaining that approval but cannot provide a timeline.