

Maundy Thursday Mary Magdalene Message

April 9, 2020

Question from Charlotte Roscher: Can I ask, I would love to hear Mary describe what she feels is the essence of this story.

Flo Aeveia/Mary Magdalene: Okay. All right. Here we go. As you know I have walked alone for many years because my dream has been that the answers lie in the people. And so I walk among the people. I am not someone that is honored and worshipped in the way Christ is or acknowledged as the greatest of us as Judas is. I am a woman of the trenches. I come forth to enable the souls and the hearts of the people to remember that they are here for something.

I have always thought that the life that we lived then and the lives that we live now are in many ways the same because each of us has the same demons, the same challenges, the same situations regardless of who is in power and how it looks and where it is going and what that is about. We are, in our deepest places, a human crystal of light, individuated from the source of all creation. If everyone remembered that, there would be no dross, no challenge, no hatred, no violence, no rape, no forgetting. No forgetting.

I have the intention to work with you Mary (Mary Madeiras) and with others to bring to the people the realization that they have the power to change this, that each of us and all people have the power to change this, this forgetting.

Remembering Union is not an idea. It is a process. For many years this one speaking and Jayn and the Soul Support people have endeavored to give people the experience of remembering because it must be an experience. And yet it does not reach enough of the people, you know, to create this thing, they say now a wave. It does not create a big enough wave to organize on the planet the remembering. And so I am confident that with the assistance that I have from many ethers and wisdom places and universal Sources that we can create a wave strong enough to help the people remember. Because if they remember their Divinity then they will stop hurting each other and the suffering will stop and the pain will stop and the separation will stop.

As close as I am to Source, you know, and that's not that close but as close as I am, what I have heard from Source is that the intention for the Free-will experiment, which is now going to be according to them the Free-heart experience, is that every living being have joy—that every living being celebrate life together. And so that is my intention in supporting a film, in being part of, which is very exciting, you know, this whole twenty-first century thing of co-creation in this way...to be part of something that has the capacity to change the forgetting. That is my intention and what I am grateful for is that you all have already joined me in that intention.
