

Daily Navigation and Weather Briefs at Southport Marina

April 13th through May 31

Back by popular demand! Now in our 5th year in providing this valuable service!

Teaming with Carolina Yacht Care (cYc) and Zimmerman Marine, Southport Marina invites you to join them during the Spring 2018 transient season for daily ICW "Navigation and Weather Briefs" - a free, one of a kind service geared towards transiting boaters. These informal discussions are an opportunity for you to join fellow cruisers at the end of the day for a presentation and interactive discussion on weather and navigation issues for the next leg of your journey.

Retired US Navy meteorologist, cruising sailor and owner of Carolina Yacht Care - Hank Pomeranz, will host the daily discussions.

On the ICW navigation side, Hank will draw from the latest US Army Corps of Engineers surveys, Notices to Mariners, recent fellow cruiser postings, direct cruiser feedback and local knowledge to help you safely navigate the ICW problem areas from Southport to Portsmouth, VA (MM 0).

On the weather side, Hank will review the current advisories, watches and warnings, analyses and forecast charts and discuss the forecasts for winds and seas, precipitation, temperatures, fog and severe weather potential for the Carolina coast, Pamlico and Albemarle Sounds.

And, you won't have to memorize everything presented. They'll have handouts on ICW trouble spots you can take back to your boat and review at your leisure.

Briefings will be held daily at 6PM from 13 April through 31 May at the marina docks.

Daily ICW "Navigation and Weather Briefs": yet another great reason to stop and stay at Southport Marina.
