

Celebrating Black History Month

Students in Ms. Ramirez Honors 10 English class put their hearts into a special Valentine's Day project honoring people of color. The class is also working on a mythology unit so they focused on people who are heroes to them.

The previous week Honors English 10 wrote letters to a local Maple Heights high school teacher who was recently chosen for the cover of Men's Health Magazine. Mr. Collier is a veteran who sustained injuries overseas. He coaches track and serves as an example to students of preserving despite difficult times.

Trinity will continue to celebrate Black History month with a special Spoken Word/Poetry event on February 21st at 6pm here at Trinity. More details to come.

Getting to Know;

Ms. Lydia Devincent, Graphic Design

This is my third year teaching the Graphic Design classes at Trinity, and every day provides new opportunities and challenges! I am a recent Cleveland transplant, originally from the Wooster/Orrville area, where I graduate from Orrville High School. I then went to the University of Akron (go Zips!), where I received my BFA in Graphic Design, and shortly after graduating I began working at Trinity. I was intrigued by the concept of teaching graphic design. It was not my original plan, as I saw myself working at an advertising agency. After interning as an in-house designer for a financial corporation, I began wanting something more fulfilling in life. Teaching gives me the opportunity to share my passion for art and design, and it also allows me to design in my freetime, whether it is freelancing or just creating for fun. Seeing the fresh ideas of the students constantly inspires and motivates me, and I love to see them grow and develop as young designers.

Outside of school, you can find me doing creative odd jobs. My current project is actually planning and designing for my wedding! This is the second wedding I have designed, and I'm loving being my own client and doing whatever I want (like creating my own custom typeface!). I am actively involved in Akron's AAF (American Advertising Federation), where I'll attend various events for networking or continuous improvement. I love traveling, nature, and being involved in conservation. One of my bucket list goals is to visit at least one National or State Park in each state. So far I'm at 16 states! I have two kitties, a Tuxedo cat named Tank, and a Tabby named Ollie. You can also find me staying active, whether it is hiking or boxing. I am a certified boxing instructor, and I have completed all 7 tiers in Pink Gloves Boxing!

Working at Trinity gives me the opportunity to learn, connect, and build relationships with students and staff, which is the fulfillment I was looking for in a job! Being a teacher allows the freetime over the summer to embark on bigger creative endeavors, as well as travel and cross things off my bucket list. I'm truly grateful for the opportunity to be here, and I look forward to what the next years have to offer.
