

DO!

Developing and Organizing Lifelong Learning

Finally! Summer is close at hand! This is a time when church life slow down a bit and we step away to reflect and refresh. 2018-2019 has been a tremendous year at UUCUC and the community has worked hard to live into UUCUC's mission and vision. You may not be sure what the congregation's mission and vision is – if you want you can look at it here: <https://uucuc.org/mission-vision> It is important that we rest. And... if you have some energy and passion to spare, there is still fun and engaging work!

A religious education task force has met over the past two months to discuss HOW we organize programming and learning. Learning is a lifelong endeavor and shows up strongly in this congregation's mission and vision. How we Develop and Organize (DO) lifelong learning is crucial to its future.

On Sunday, June 2nd from 1-3 PM, this task force will meet to discuss the input from three small working groups (children, youth and adult religious education working groups). The goal of this June 2nd meeting is create a structure that can guide the immediate future of UUCUC lifelong learning. This structure is a test – we will use this structure until the end of December 2019 and evaluate it in January 2021 to see if we need to tweak and shift to make it work for our congregation's current and future lifelong learning needs.

All are invited to be a part of this creative and inventive work. It is an open process. If you wish to come, please RSVP with dietary limitations to Michele no later than May 31st. Lunch will be served.

You may notice, that the term, "religious education committee" has not been used while talking about this process. This is because it has not been determined that a committee is the best organization structure needed. We may need a council and working teams or some other creative structure that fits within the twenty-first century model of what it means to be a Unitarian Universalist community.

Warning.... Creative organization is afoot! We hope you will join us on this adventure...
