Maintaining Access to Your Physician's Matters:

One of the most common concerns during a healthcare transition is whether members will need to change doctors. In most cases, the answer is no. CalVEBA works with broad, established networks that include many of the same physicians, medical groups, hospitals, and healthcare systems members use today. As shown in the provider network comparison, all of the region's leading medical groups continue to participate in the proposed plans, helping members maintain continuity of care while gaining access to CalVEBA's enhanced support services. Before any transition occurs, members will have access to provider lookup tools, educational resources, and the CalVEBA Advocacy Team, which can help verify physician participation and assist with any necessary care coordination. Our goal is to make any transition as smooth and seamless as possible while ensuring members and their families continue to have access to the quality care they need. The provider comparison you see here highlights many of the major physician groups that are available in both the current and proposed networks.
