Monday, Sept. 15 at 10 a.m. -- “ENDANGERED SPECIES” -- Learn about the endangered animals that call Canaveral National Seashore home. Species diversity includes mice, birds, reptiles and aquatic mammals. Explore why this barrier island is vital to their survival and how you can help. Meet at the Apollo Visitor Information Center. (Activity duration: 1 hour)

Monday, Sept. 22 at 1 p.m. -- “SEA TURTLE NESTING SEASON 2025” -- Join us for a general discussion on nesting sea turtles and specifically, how the 2025 nesting season is progressing at Canaveral National Seashore. Meet at the Apollo Visitor Information Center. (Activity duration: 1 hour)

2025 INTERNATIONAL COASTAL CLEANUP

Saturday, September 20, from 8 to 11 a.m.

Canaveral National Seashore invites the public to join the annual International Coastal Cleanup. Once a year and throughout the world, millions of volunteers who love the ocean and want to protect it, take this day to really make a difference. Come join Canaveral National Seashore and its many visitors in the annual international event to help clean up marine debris that has washed ashore with the tides. The first 100 visitors will receive a free T-Shirt. Be sure to bring water in a reusable container, work gloves, sunscreen, and a hat for protection from the sun. Meet at the Apollo Visitor Information Center at the address provided in the top portion of this page.

Saturday, Sept 27 - FEE FREE DAY -- Come out and celebrate "National Public Lands Day".

Saturday, Sept. 27, at 11 a.m. -- "THE TIMUCUA OF TURTLE MOUND"

We will gather at the Apollo Visitor Information Center and visit one of the largest shell middens in the nation to discuss what life was like for the people who called this site home for thousands of years. We will review how the mounds of the area were used, examine selected artifacts, and discuss the science of studying the people of the past. (Activity duration: 30 minutes)
