

KDS Students Celebrate Homecoming Week

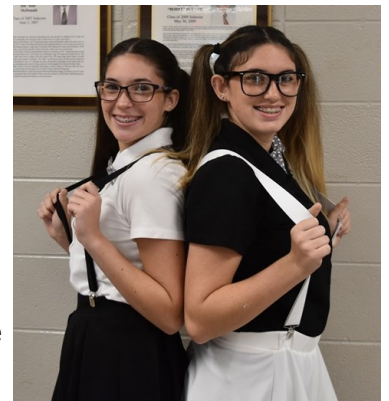

High school students at KDS DAR High School go all out for Homecoming week. Nathan McBee was crowned Homecoming King and Taylor Corbin Homecoming Queen before the student body celebrated the Patriots' decisive 55-0 victory over the New Hope Indians, but that merely capped off the busy week of Homecoming activities!

This year the theme was “Game On.” Dress-up days are a part of our school spirit, and each day of the week had a different dress-up theme. Monday's theme was “Don't Wake Daddy” with students wearing pajamas. Tuesday was “Cranium” and students dressed as nerds. On Wednesday, it was “Scene It: Character Day”, and students dressed as their favorite video game characters. The teachers really got involved in this day, with most of the faculty dressing in emoji shirts. Thursday was “Clue Day”, and students dressed as cops and robbers. Friday's theme was “Battleship”, and students dressed in their class colors which symbolize pride and integrity, as well as spirit and determination.

Alone we are one — together we are KDS DAR School! The students and faculty take pride in our school, and to show that, each class built and decorated a float for the parade on Thursday. Cheerleaders and football players rode in the parade, the band marched, the color guard twirled their flags, and the Homecoming Court rode in convertibles down Main Street, which was lined with cheering Patriots fans. There was a powder puff game after the parade that let our girls go head to head in football, with the guys cheering them on. The students enjoy the entertainment every year.

The sophomore class won first place with a Las Vegas themed float in the DAR Homecoming Parade. The juniors took second place with a Toy Story themed float bearing the slogan “Round Up the Indians.” The freshman class won third place with a cannon float and the slogan “Blast the Indians.” Popcorn and the slogan “Grab your popcorn — we're putting on a show!” made the senior class fourth place float.

On Friday, there was a pep rally with games and fun competitions between the classes. There was a humorous ugly walk, with class representatives dressed in their “finest attire.” Seniors had tailgate parties before the game, which brought the class of 2018 together with food and memories.
