

ASDAR State Conference

The Alabama Society Daughters of the American Revolution continues to champion the cause of patriotic education with its avid support of KDS. During the 121st Alabama Society DAR Conference in Auburn on March 8-10, that tradition of support certainly showed.

During the Saturday morning DAR School Breakfast, ASDAR celebrated the 95th anniversary of the founding of KDS DAR School. Juniors Ben Sutton and Georgia Turner spoke about what makes KDS such a special place, Junior Nicole Filmore led the National Anthem, and Executive Director Heather Green shared her presentation "KDS DAR School: Our History, Our Legacy", which featured photos of the school's early days.

KDS also provided students to serve as pages during the conference. In addition to Georgia and Nicole, seniors Cameron Cooper and Maggie Mance donned 'whites' to assist the ladies with the business of the Alabama Society.

KDS seniors Paxton Seeley and Sydney Rembert were awarded ASDAR Scholarships.

The Awards Luncheon on Friday proved successful for KDS students as well.

Seniors Sydney Rembert and Paxton Seeley were awarded ASDAR scholarships, and 7th Grade Student Landon Black was awarded first place in the state for his American History Essay.

KDS representatives manned an information booth and talked with interested ladies about the projects and programs of the school as well as sold promotional items.

But the true success of the school during the Alabama Society DAR State Conference is in the sharing of the KDS story with long-time and new DAR members. It is a time to celebrate the unique privilege of having a DAR School in Alabama and to show appreciation for KDS's most devoted supporters – Alabama Daughters!

Cameron, Maggie, and Nicole did a fantastic job as conference pages.
