

Doc has invented time-travel using a DeLorean car powered by plutonium. Marty accidentally activates the DeLorean time machine and is transported back to 1955. He ends up meeting his mother and father who at this point are teenagers. Marty is afraid that his parents are not going to meet and fall in love. This of course would mean that Marty does not exist in 1985. But Marty gets them set up with one another; however Biff enters the scene and attempts to take advantage of Lorraine. The classic future changing scene is when George finds Biff trying to take advantage of Lorraine and cold cocks Biff. That one scene changed the entire future for George, Lorraine and the McFly family. If you haven't seen the movie, the ending back at the McFly house is a sight to behold. George standing up to Biff completely changed the future.

So you are probably wondering, where is Wegge headed with this Back to the Future review? Hold on just a bit and we'll connect the dots.

Last week the greater Green Bay community experienced the success of a major event, Give Big Green Bay. This event, a partnership with two outstanding organizations in our community, the Greater Green Bay Community Foundation and the Green Bay Packers Foundation, raised $1,232,856 for 40 organizations with contributions from 2,800 donors--WOW! The success of this event is a trademark of our community's generosity and commitment to improving the quality of life for all in Green Bay. Thank you and kudos to these two fine community organizations, the donors and to the organizations that will benefit from these donations.

I believe that these donations will have a life changing impact for individuals and families who are served by these 40 organizations; an impact much like standing up to Biff changed the course of George McFly's life.

Reviewing the list of organizations on the Give Big Green Bay Leaderboard tells me that many lives will be changed by this program. More members of the greater Green Bay Area will have access to shelter, permanent housing, food, education, social interaction and health care. While many of these organizations are serving the immediate needs of people in our community, I also believe that the future of many of these individuals will be substantially changed by this program!

Congratulations to all of those involved in the Give Big Green Bay project from the Bay Area Community Council.
