Injecting Questions

Ink and Watercolor

Hanna Pfershy, 2021

This piece represents the unique patient experience to me, in the context of the COVID-19 vaccines. It is a reminder that for procedures that seem mundane and repetitive to us as providers, as administering the vaccine became to me, it is still new and unknown to each patient that walks in the door. The CHPR experience introduced me to our role as teachers in this profession, and gave me a foundational experience in what it means to listen to, reassure, and support a patient's unique concerns.
