

LEARN.
INSPIRE.
ACT.

Powered by: JEWISH FAMILY SERVICES of WASHTENAW COUNTY

*Lecture By Andrew I. Port, Ph.D
Professor of History, Wayne State University*

Germany will remain indelibly associated with Nazism and the genocide of European Jewry.

But since 1945, the Federal Republic of Germany has served as a haven for refugees and others seeking asylum.

This talk discusses how German efforts to deal with their country's sordid past have stimulated a variety of humanitarian efforts since World War II – including support for mass groups of refugees fleeing genocidal regimes across the globe.

Why have Germans so successfully embraced the lessons of the past while Americans struggle to do so?

SUNDAY
October 27, 2019
3:00–5:00 PM

Lecture and dessert reception at
MEDITERRANO
2900 S State St
Ann Arbor, MI 48108

For inquiries, please contact
JFSU at 734-769-0209
or events@jfsaa.org.

Proudly Supported By:

Welcome the stranger.
Protect the refugee.

Living the Lessons of History:

German and American Responses to Refugee Crises in the Wake of Genocide

Registration:
jfsannarbor.org/events

$25 per ticket

Student Rate: $15
No one will be turned away because of an inability to pay.