

SUPPORTING THE SOCIAL-EMOTIONAL NEEDS OF GIFTED/TALENTED STUDENTS

How are the social-emotional needs of your students addressed in your school, classroom and curriculum? Educators and school support staff can play a critical role in helping bright, talented, and creative young people develop strong resilient identities, caring interpersonal relationships, and fulfilling adult lives.

Michele Kane, EdD, from Northeastern Illinois University, joins us for the day to share her expertise in this area. Participants will receive a copy of the Gifted Education Seminar Counseling the Gifted Module USB drive, the text Counseling the Gifted and Talented by Linda Kreger Silverman, and 6 PD Hours.

This workshop is recommended for teachers, school psychologists, social workers, and counselors.
