When: Monday, October 1, 2018

Where: Pioneer Memorial Presbyterian Church, Solon

What: A retreat day for pastors and church leaders

Who: Dr. Jehu Hanciles, author and professor from Candler School of Theology

Why: In the midst of massive polarization surrounding issues of immigration, Dr. Hanciles offers insight about the vast and varied gifts that migrant populations can bring with them when they join our communities and our churches. As mainline religious affiliation continues to decline in this country, we find ourselves potentially welcoming deeply religious believers, who just may offer the seeds of Christian renewal for those who open their doors - and hearts - to these newcomers.

This is an exciting new partnership between the Presbytery of the Western Reserve, the United Church of Christ leadership, and Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. The day will include a dynamic presentation by Dr. Hanciles, breakout sessions for pastors and congregational leaders, engaging worship, and some pretty fabulous food. Additional details will be coming your way in early September -- we hope you plan to join us!

Brought to you by the PWR Committees on Leadership and Outreach (and friends).
