Program

Small World, Big Circle: Covenanting Together in Faith and Service

In “Small World, Big Circle,” we will explore the deep threads that bind our faith communities—locally and globally—and reflect on our covenantal responsibility to engage in meaningful service together. From our local churches to our associations, conference, and denomination, we are woven into a larger fabric of faith, united by our commitment to justice and compassion. Rev. Jonathan Bradner will share stories of how this covenant has taken shape in his advocacy work, from local human rights efforts to broader initiatives like the International Affairs Seminar, where the Heartland Conference and Christian Church of Ohio brought youth to Washington, D.C., and New York City, to explore global issues. Jonathan will also discuss a recent delegation pilgrimage to Kenya, where decades-long relationships were revived with the Presbyterian Teachers College at Rubate and new connections formed with the Charles Musyoka Matuku Foundation. Together, we’ll reflect on how these threads call us into action, moving us beyond our own circles into a covenant of shared responsibility for the world.
