Students meet on campus following Kent State's Flashes Safe 8.

"I worked on the leader board and then the Executive board for UCM. Then became the LGBTQIA+ intern. I am truly going to miss the wonderful people in this group and leading programs that help educate and inform others about the community as well as the kindness, compassion, and warmth given to all." Amy

Pastors, Families ---If you know a student or are a KSU student, please check out the UCM social media platforms and reach out today to receive a free Welcome mailing to learn more.

"UCM is a great place for students to share ideas and lead different programs that they are interested in." Graduating 2021 President, Max

It is a joy and an honor to be supported by the Living Water Association as the sponsored UCC campus ministry at Kent State University. United Christian Ministries (UCM) continuously provided student ministry programs and support during three Covid-19 conditioned semesters, emphasizing science and safety in delivery of pastoral support and student engagement. UCM incarnated the Golden Rule, seeking to protect our communities, families, and world from the spread of the coronavirus.

Students coming to KSU will find many Christian groups, yet none embodies the bold, inclusive vision of the UCC tradition like UCM. UCM is a recognized Ally of the KSU LGBTQ+ Center and has a designated LGBTQ+ Student Intern. UCM remains the only Christian campus ministry that is ecumenical, fully inclusive, intentionally interfaith, multi-racial and committed to ongoing social justice with meaningful programs on Black Lives Matter, Anti-Racism Awareness, Ally-ship and Advocacy.

With hopes for full vaccination, UCM student leaders and ministry team are planning a return to more in-person programs, while still maintaining a vital virtual ministry to include participation from those who will study online and from wherever home is. With creative new approaches to recruitment, outreach, service, social justice, Bible study and prayer support UCM engages students in faithful discernment and growth in their college years. Share this exciting news with KSU students in your family, church and community.
