ANNUAL REPORT 2018

ANNUAL REPORT 2018

Dear friends, colleagues, donors and supporters,

We are pleased to present you with our 2018 Annual Report, which will provide you with information about the work of IASWECE throughout the world.

Being co-workers, friends and helpers of our association we want to keep you informed about our activities aiming to improve the quality of early childhood education worldwide and give you an update on the developments in the various country projects that you help us support. We also find it important to give you a picture of our sources of income and how we have used our financial means to support our work.

As we move into the future, the social questions of our time are growing in complexity and are reflected in the increasing educational questions we are facing. To understand these burning issues and meet them with courage and hope, asks that we increasingly strengthen and take mastership of our thoughts, feelings and actions. With the digital age we are encountering a whole new and still rather unknown landscape of possibilities and challenges. The question of 'what is the human core' is becoming an existential one, and the fostering of human essentials needs to be increasingly the focus of education.

Searching for the essentials we are fortunate to be able to work together within the rich and diverse colleagueship of the IASWECE council and its working groups. Here we try to develop new ways in which Steiner/Waldorf education can meet the needs the young child is facing today and surely even more so in the future. Trying to have an impact on the policy level, we also need to work together beyond our own movement with like-minded partners. In this sense we continue to act as a voice for the young child by working together in advocacy platforms that develop and support legislation that will affect the healthy development of early childhood in its broadest sense.

It is our hope that the content of this report will encourage you to support our work and activities on behalf of children worldwide.

On behalf of the board, the coordinating group and our many IASWECE colleagues devoted to these tasks, we send our heartfelt greetings.

Sincerely,

Tina Iwersen, Oliver Langscheid, Janni Nicol, and Lourdes Tormes Granados (Board)

Clara Aerts, Susan Howard, Philipp Reubke (Coordinating Group)

"Against a background of prevailing materialistic trends in education and modern culture, the protection, indeed the salvation, of childhood as the fundamental stage of each individual's unfolding life has become a worldwide pioneering work.

In our Association, all who serve the education of children, the training of educators, the cooperation with parents, and the development of human culture at large - spiritually, legally and economically, work together.

The fruitfulness of worldwide cooperation beyond all limits of language, politics and religion is a tried and tested experience."

Dr. Helmut von Kügelgen

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE YEAR'S ACTIVITIES FOR 2018

Council Meeting in Czech Republic

The Council met in Prague in May, with a focus on collaboration with other organizations, particularly the International Forum and the European Council for Steiner Waldorf Education (ECSWE), where topics discussed included digital media literacy and the transition from kindergarten to school.

The council also welcomed the Steiner/Waldorf Association of Vietnam as a new Member association. IASWECE now has 34 member country associations representing 36 countries in Europe, North and South America, Africa, Asia and Australia/New Zealand.

Council members also participated in film interviews for an upcoming film on Steiner Waldorf early childhood education to be released in 2019.

Digital Media Conference in Prague

On May 10, a public conference on Education in the Digital Age was co-sponsored by the Czech Waldorf Association, the International Forum, ECSWE and IASWECE. The conference took place at Charles University in Prague and was attended by academics, Czech Waldorf colleagues, IASWECE Council members and members of the International Forum and European Council.

Council Meeting meeting in Termonfeckin, Ireland

The IASWECE Council's October meeting took place at An Grianan in Termonfeckin, north of Dublin, where a number of council members also participated in a conference of the Irish Steiner Waldorf Kindergarten Association, ISKA. The Council worked on final preparations for the 2019 World Conference and finalized a Manifesto on School Readiness for use in the worldwide Waldorf movement.

International Trainers meeting in Kilkenny, Ireland

Eighty Steiner Waldorf Trainers from 5 continents met in the medieval city of Kilkenny for several days in October. The theme at this fourth international meeting of Waldorf trainers was research. How do we ourselves work as researchers in the natural sciences, social research, educational science and above all as people who are researching within anthroposophy? Florian Osswald offered introductory lectures and there was a wide array of workshops and opportunities for exchange.

OUR PARTNERS - COLLABORATION WITH OTHER ORGANISATIONS

Together with partners within the Steiner Waldorf and Anthroposophical movement we worked on topics of common interest. In addition especially within Europe we reached out beyond our own movement to like-minded partners to bring the attention of European policy makers to the possibly harmful effects some of the new trends being promoted for educational policy reform.

Birth to Three: The Care1 Project

In February the Care1 project organised a colloquium bringing together professionals from the medical and pedagogical field focusing on pregnancy, birth and the first 3 years of life. Topics discussed were among other things: parental needs and stress and anxiety, based on an international survey done by the IASWECE B-3 (Birth to three) working group, increased C-section rates and side effects for mother and child, and possibilities for parental information and care in the first days and weeks after birth. In preparation are a larger colloquium in 2019 and conference in 2020.

The Digitalisation of Childhood

As a partner of ELIANT we helped launch a campaign for "a human-centered education" in March 2018. The petition is still running as we continue to try to raise awareness for an age-appropriate media curriculum. In May we participated in a public conference on this topic in Prague, together with our colleagues in ECSWE. In November IASWECE participated in a workshop organised by media experts to discuss how resources on the use of media and the effects of digital media can be integrated in Waldorf trainings and inform parents. Through the lobby work of our partners in ECSWE, important amendments in the EU recommendations on the development of digital competencies in early childhood centers' and schools were made possible.

Waldorf 100

In the realm of the centennial anniversary of Waldorf education, IASWECE co-produced a short film highlighting important aspects challenging early childhood today. The film aims to address these burning issues in a way that speaks to the heart and mind of parents and educators. It features Waldorf early childhood educators, children and parents and gives a dynamic picture of our cultural diverse movement. The film was premiered at the international conference in April this year and is available in English, German and Spanish at the IASWECE website.

Trademark

IASWECE collaborated with our partners in the Pedagogical Section, Freunde der Erziehungskunst and the International Forum for Waldorf Education in processing applications by new Steiner/Waldorf initiatives. We also worked out a pathway how to be included in the World List of Waldorf schools and kindergartens. Furthermore we agreed on a process through which Steiner/Waldorf country associations can apply for the right to grant a license for the use of the "Steiner" and "Waldorf" trademarks to institutions in their own country.
