This course considers the politics of power and protest by examining the ecologies and hydropolitics of water.

We will discuss Indigenous water rights, climate change and catastrophes, capitalism and shipping, space exploration and colonization, labor rights at the water cooler, tourism and wastewater, borders and state-building, biodiversity loss, and drinking water.