Grow Your Leadership Agility

The global pandemic has introduced even more complexity and uncertainty into our lives. Research tells us that we need more resilience to cope. It also tells us that business leaders need to be more 'agile' to cope with constant changes in the global marketplace.

But what does 'agile' mean in the context of our personal and working lives?

What is Agility?

Agility is the capability to make meaning from complex and uncertain events. The only way to become more agile is by growing our personal and professional capacities. The more complexity and uncertainty we face, the higher the level of agility we require.

We are excited to offer the women of FACC this unique learning experience to increase the levels of leadership agility needed in both their personal and professional lives. Combining assessment, interaction, intensive small group work and individual coaching, this series' purpose is to facilitate the growth of each participant's level of agility in four areas: context-setting, creativity, self-leadership, and stakeholder analysis.

Individual coaching is expensive. Becoming part of a small, intimate group is also a way to benefit from the advice and coaching of like-minded professional women as well as the facilitation and certified executive coaching of Dr. Marion Estienne.

What will you take-away?

- Increased self-awareness, the first step to grow as a leader
- Honed coaching skills making you the leader everyone wants to work for
- Learning to step back and appreciate the broader context within which any organizational decision or initiative is imbedded
- Appreciate the number and variety of stakeholders involved in any organizational issue and how to work with them
- Become more confident in times of disruption and uncertainty
- Learn the 'secret sauce' which enables you to grow from one level of agility to the next

Is this for you?

If you are a woman who is responsible for getting results by working with others, who manages a team, who must influence and persuade without formal authority, and/or who wants to be a better version of yourself, then yes, these Coaching Circles are for you.
