RE: MEETINGS, CONFERENCES & EVENTS SECTOR

Dear Minister Beare, Minister Dix, and Minister Mungall,

On behalf of the thousands of businesses and organizations that represent or supply British Columbia's multi-billion dollar meetings, conferences and events industry, we are writing to ask for the Province's assistance in helping this vital sector manage and recover from the impacts of COVID-19.

Since the start of the crisis, countless numbers of local, regional, national and international groups have cancelled their meetings, conferences and events...a pattern we know will continue over the next few months. Needless to say, the impact has been catastrophic.

While we understand and support the restrictions on events and gatherings to stop the spread of COVID-19, many in our sector are still planning for and working towards event business occurring later this year (Q4). The scope and scale may be significantly different and smaller than original plans. However, the hope is that some meetings, conferences and events will take place in 2020.

During a press conference two weeks ago, Dr. Henry responded to a reporter's question by stating, "meetings where we all got together, conferences, those are not going to happen this year anywhere in the world." Since then, the province's meetings, conferences and events sector has plunged into further uncertainty with the potential to completely devastate the industry and ground business to a standstill for the remainder of this year.

In BC's Restart Plan, phase 4 is conditional on community wide vaccination, immunity or broad successful treatments. Unfortunately the timeline is undetermined. In his address to the province on Thursday, May 6th, Premier Horgan emphasized that until these things happen, BC will not be hosting rock concerts, conventions or any large gatherings beyond 50 people.

Our understanding of the current Provincial State of Emergency and Provincial Health Officer Order is as follows: You are prohibited from permitting the gathering of people in excess of 50 people at a place of which you are the owner, occupier or operator, or for which you are otherwise responsible. This Order expires on May 30, 2020 and is subject to revision, cancellation or extension by me (Dr. Henry).

While we respect the official order and commend BC's Restart Plan, we respectfully submit the following recommendations for consideration:

- A. To allow the sector to potentially salvage business in 2020, implement a rolling evaluation plan to assess and/or adjust restrictions on gatherings and events every 30 days.
- B. To allow larger gatherings in proportion to the size of the venue or outdoor space, utilize space configuration measures or models in conjunction with accompanying distance protocols.

If as many as 300 people can shop at the same time in a big box retailer, conceivably the same number of people could attend an event in a convention facility, hotel, venue or outdoor setting within a controlled environment managed by professionals with expertise in crowd control and space configuration.

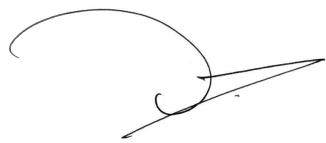

For many companies, generating any business at all in 2020 will be the difference between staying viable and solvent versus closing down permanently. For tens of thousands of people across the province who rely on this industry for their very livelihood, it will make the difference between future permanent employment versus long-term unemployment.

Ministers, our unique sector supports local and regional economic activity, while at the same time generating significant visitor spending and GDP, and adding to the social vibrancy and well-being of our province. We simply cannot afford to lose valuable talent and force facilities and venues to sit idle for a prolonged period of time across British Columbia.

We applaud the Ministry of Health for its swift and necessary response to COVID-19 and support the Province's efforts to manage this crisis. We also appreciate your willingness to work with our industry towards recovery and to re-opening key sectors of the economy.

Thank you for considering our recommendations. We look forward to discussing our proposal with you further, and to submitting our sector's best practice guidelines for review and approval in the near future.

Sincerely,

Ted Lee
