Watchman Nee, a missionary to his homeland of China, is credited with saying, "They whipped my feet till my hands hurt."

It begs the question: why did the hands hurt if the feet were whipped? The obvious answer is that the feet and hands are attached to the same body. Somewhere, that truth is being forgotten in the suffering of the people of Nigeria today. More Christians are being murdered in Nigeria than anywhere else in the world, and no one in America seems to be saying anything. It makes you wonder if the hands in America and the church here are truly connected to the same body as the feet in Nigeria. Is there even a hint of concern?

I wake up every day praying for the people there. We, as a ministry, have Christian schools and seminary training for pastors in many countries around the world. Forty-eight to be exact. Included in that number is Nigeria. Our students and teachers there are safe so far, but for how long?

Please pray for my teachers, students, and staff that God will continue to hide them from the Islamic terrorists who are trying to destroy them. Boko Haram is straight out of hell. But God is greater than Boko Haram.

And, as you know, we have schools in Vietnam. Over 280,000 students are training for ministry in our Global REAP University. We also have K–12 schools with hundreds upon hundreds of students learning through Christian curriculum. We have been embraced by the Buddhist culture. They are inviting our teachers, our curriculum, and our class monitors into their temples to teach Christian education. My friend, this is not a joke. This is a fact. Four temples have opened their facilities to us. They are removing idols and allowing us to come in. We are in many sensitive countries. I will not mention their names, and I cannot raise money specifically for them because it would put our people in harm's way and close doors to winning souls in some of the most devastated nations on earth.

While all of this is happening overseas, I turn on my television and see America decaying to the point that Christians are being murdered even in our own country. Some are being assassinated simply because the far left cannot stand the stand they have taken for Jesus Christ.

But it is not all darkness. This very week, as I spoke in schools in Ohio, I saw students experiencing a new and amazing great awakening. I finished speaking at one school and hundreds and hundreds of students gave a standing ovation. Then they began to ask questions.

At the end of the question time, two beautiful young Black gentlemen stood to their feet and said, “Mr. Roever, can we pray for you?” I was so flabbergasted. In a public school, these teenagers were publicly taking a stand for Jesus. The student body cheered. Everyone was excited because someone was taking a stand for Christ. Of course I was blown away. The students began to pray for me. My message of hope resonated with those kids. My heart is renewed. My hope for a great awakening is rising again. It is already taking place in American universities and public schools, in the very places where faith has been most threatened. Thank God. He always has an answer.

In the last few weeks, I have ministered to hundreds of military personnel at NASA's Stennis Space Center and at US Navy Special Boat Team 22. Major corporations have invited me to speak to their leadership as well. God is moving on every front in this country. The political upheaval we are seeing is nothing less than God separating right from wrong, good from evil, and fulfilling the scripture that says, “Let the filthy be filthy still, and the holy be holy still.”

As things get worse, in truth, they are getting better. Jesus is not coming for a polluted and confused people, but for a bride without spot or wrinkle.

Please pray for our teams in the countries I cannot list, but know that our footprint is worldwide. We need two things in particular: your prayers without ceasing and your financial support urgently.

If God speaks to your heart to support this ministry, I promise to be a good steward of your gifts.

Years ago, I was standing in line at a bank with a friend while people stared rudely at my scarred face. It was so frustrating. My friend turned around and shouted, "If you only knew!"

Well, if you knew the whole story, you would support without hesitation. I just want to stand here now and shout to you, "If you only knew!"

Thank you for your support.

Please donate and say yes to helping us change the world we live in today.

I love you forever.
