

CAREER EDUCATION AT GLENDALE COMMUNITY COLLEGE (GCC)

A character created by a GCC student & printed with a 3D printer

WHAT IS CAREER EDUCATION?

- Educational programs designed to connect students more directly to the workforce
- Sometimes called Career and Technical Education or CTE
- Informed by regional labor market needs and industry professionals
- Often offer shorter timelines to completion than many other college programs, can also be a starting point to other career pathways that lead to bachelor's and graduate degrees

LABOR MARKET INFORMATION (LMI) RESOURCES

Careers with a Bright Future

L.A. Basin Labor Market Reports, with analysis of growing occupations

The Center for a Competitive Workforce produces ongoing regional labor market reports, primarily focused on middle-skill occupations, to better understand regional labor market supply and demand data, support industry-driven career education and workforce development programs, and strengthen industry engagement with higher education or community colleges across the Los Angeles region.

MANUFACTURING: AN INDUSTRY IN TRANSITION (2020)

THE INFORMATION AND COMMUNICATIONS TECHNOLOGY INDUSTRY AND ITS WORKFORCE (2020)

CONSTRUCTION: AN INDUSTRY WITH GROWING "MIDDLE-SKILL" WORKFORCE SHORTAGES (2020)

COE Mission

We aspire to be the leading source of regional workforce information and insight for California Community Colleges.
