"STICKS AND STONES.....CONTINUED FROM FRONT PAGE

Since I learned that word, and since I spent time engaging it in the world I have noticed my view of the future change. Where before I would more often get stuck in the present circumstances; where before I could likely sulk for a while before moving on; where during COVID years I might have easily stayed in fear and isolation, now I am a little more quick to see ahead at the potential for good to come. Today I am more ready to look past the hard times and envision what the light at the end of the tunnel will hold.

If you've ever wondered what it looks like to try and see the world through a different lens, and especially if you never figured out how, I have a recommendation for you. Rather than put on fake glasses to see differently, why not try something tangible. Try using a new word, but not just any word. Try using a word you want to enfold into your vocabulary and eventually change who you are for the better. There's lots of great ones. Here are some of my favorite: grace, mercy, honest, courage, and wise.

"STICKS AND STONES MAY BREAK MY BONES, BUT WORDS FOREVER CHANGE ME"

What happened to the popular trend of learning new words? I remember about 10 years ago when many people around me were learning new words daily or weekly. It was fun to know who was trying to learn new words. I would spend time with them in conversation on the day I knew they would get a new word. I wouldn't ask them what the day's word was. I would just sit back and listen for the new word to come tumbling awkwardly out of their mouth – because they we're taking it for a test run, and the first time they used it was always entertaining. For most people, and with most words, this was just a simple exercise of the brain or a fun challenge. But every now and then a word would come up that would solidify itself into their vocabulary.

For me one of those words was longanimity. (Try saying that three times fast!) Longanimity is having the ability to see through the hard times and envision what the light at the end of the tunnel will hold. I used it in conversation a few times and each time I had to explain that I wasn't referring to the sea creature where clown fish live. I would spend a week or so trying to use this word and explain it to people because I thought it was interesting. I never thought much of it then, but looking back I noticed something...

ROOM RESERVATIONS AT FRONT STREET

As summer comes to an end and church groups begin to meet again this fall and special events are planned, we want to ensure that each group or event has a meeting place. The staff at Front Street is here to assist with this need.

The church requires a room reservation form to be completed and submitted to the office for all meetings or events. The form is available on the Home page of the church website under Quick Links, click on "Reserve a Room @ FSUMC." Also, a paper copy of the form is available in the church office. Once the reservation form has been submitted, a confirmation email will be sent regarding the room request.

Please understand that filling out this form is to help you think through your needs as well as to help the staff assist you. Activities will be recommended for approval based on their compliance with the stated goals and policies of the church and the availability of church facilities and services.

If children or youth under the age of 18 are involved in the activity, Safe Sanctuary guidelines apply.

Please give a minimum of two weeks' notice before the date of the activity.

Thank You

I am now the owner of a motorized wheelchair. This could not be possible without the generous support of the wonderful people at Front Street UMC. Many thanks to all who contributed to make this wheelchair possible. Right now I am in training to learn how to maneuver it. So watch out.

You continue to shower me with your blessings with cards, gifts, visits, and especially your prayers.

Jeremiah 29:11 says; "For I know the plans I have for you, declares the Lord. Plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future."

I don't know what is ahead but I trust in the Lord to show me the way. Thank you so much for all you have done to give me hope for my future. I love all of you. May God continue to bless you and keep you in His loving care

Blessings, Cynthia Powell

Many thanks to Randy and Vanessa Bryan, who have been Meals on Wheels volunteers for the past nine years. For five of those years, the Bryans did double duty on Route 7, covering two of our delivery slots. We wish Randy and Vanessa good health and much happiness as they "retire" from the Front Street UMC Meals on Wheels volunteer group!
