

Shane Sandridge is a Senior Relationship Manager in Commercial Real Estate Banking at Bank of America. Beginning 12 years ago in corporate real estate with Bank of America, Shane advanced through roles in commercial underwriting and sales, arriving in his current position in February 2020.

In his role, Shane manages a diverse portfolio of commercial real estate clients, delivering strategic financing and banking solutions. He leads a client service team responsible for coordinating the delivery of all banking services, acting as the primary bank advocate for his clients. Shane is accountable for prospecting new business and enhancing existing relationships, engaging in advisory-level conversations with clients' executive leadership regarding industry trends and capital structures. He assesses risks and impacts from both the client's and the bank's perspectives to develop and implement comprehensive client strategies.
