Foster Change Provides Support, Resources to Caregivers

Being a foster parent takes plenty of compassion, patience and love. Sometimes, it's also good to know someone out there can empathize and have your back. Enter, Foster Change.

Founded in 2016, Foster Change is a local non-profit committed to empowering foster, adoptive and kinship families. Foster Change brings all local organizations—including Fostering Southern Nevada, Foster Kinship, the Foster and Adoptive Coalition and Foster Connect—under one umbrella, in partnership with Clark County Department of Family Services, through the Quality Parenting Initiative.

“We all want the same thing: happy, healthy children in happy, healthy families,” said Audrey Rosenstein of Foster Change. “By bringing these four groups together, we strengthen our voice in the community and help families any way we can.”

Foster Change supports those families by providing training, education, resources and much more to its members. Do you have questions about current child welfare trends or need respite/babysitting referrals? Foster Change is there to help.
