Care Coordination Series

While reducing avoidable readmissions has been a national priority for a decade, in 2021, nearly half of all acute care facilities received Medicare penalties due to excess readmissions.¹

With the COVID-19 pandemic, we learned how important care coordination is and the impact it has on patient outcomes.

Now is the time to take action and support your staff and patients by reigniting efforts on care coordination.

Join the cohort of healthcare teams as Health Services Advisory Group (HSAG) hosts an action-based quickinar² series to provide tactics, strategies, and information needed for improving care coordination.

Discover the roadmap to guide your team's care coordination success in 2022:

- Find tools and training to help identify your current care coordination program's strengths and gaps.
- Identify and implement evidence-based strategies that address gaps.
- Access resources on the HSAG care coordination webpage.

Who Should Attend:

- Acute Care Case Management and Quality Departments
