KASAMAMADE

KasamaMade is a homemade pop-up business that's rooted in serving up familiar tastes of the motherland (Philippines) in diaspora. It's owned and operated by a queer, non-binary Filipinx femme who is committed in the accessibility of both culturally specific foods and resources for their community. We create an array of food items with a handful of vegan, gluten-free, and non-vegan/gluten free options every session. Every month KasamaMade intentionally redistributes funds earned to different community members that are struggling to get their needs met, most often due to systemic and institutional barriers and aids through financial relief.
