Nate Neiman and staff welcomes old and new friends to Neiman's Family Market

When times are tough, like they have been for our community, you find out who your friends are -- and how much of a positive impact the last few years have been tough. Through Covid, mask mandates, supply issues and inflation we at Neiman's Family Market are grateful for our customers, old and new. You have become like friends to our family.

In 2022, we invite you all to our market (even if you haven't been here before!) Our faith in our community, family and employees is stronger than ever. When the pandemic first started we were humbled by the support of our customers and the dedication of our staff. When we opened Neiman's Family Market in Clarkston we knew we could have a positive impact on the community. Little did we know since then (2013) how much of a positive impact the community would have on us and our family.

Despite these tough times we were able to grow our family business, employ over 40 area residents and give back to the community, school, food pantries and local charities with both food and monetary donations. We will continue this tradition of giving in 2022.

We have kept our shelves stocked and spirits up. We have a wonderful and friendly staff. It's our belief that if you let your people be good, good things will happen.

We will continue to grow our Michigan grown produce and Eastern Michigan produce.

This commitment to fresh, local produce has led to a digit percent growth with our produce department in this business. Our roots are were butchers and dairy farmers. We thank you for recognizing what our staff does on a daily basis to bring you friendly service and fresh produce.

We invite you to check out our destination for groceries and invite the staff to check out our produce department.

Your story

Your marketing message

Your business or organization has a unique story that our readers want to know.

Our special Progress Edition invites you to tell your story — the past, the present and what's to come. We look forward to sharing that story along with photographs of your business and the people who make that business go with our readers.
