BREAKING NEWS

SPORTS

On October 9, the John Carroll Cavaliers will take on Briarwood Christian in a game that has the whole school looking forward to Friday night. Last week the Cavs had a crushing 48-0 victory against Westminster. After facing the Wildcats, the Cavs will turn their attention to Briarwood, hoping to carry their momentum into one of the most anticipated games of the season. The theme is neon, so make sure to put on your brightest colors, and get ready to cheer on the Cavs. For Quarterback Harrison White, the Briarwood matchup is another opportunity for the Cavaliers to compete against a familiar opponent. "We need everyone there to be loud and locked in," White said. When asked about what the team needs to do against Briarwood, White said, "We are focused on doing our jobs this week to watch film, recover, and practice with intensity so we can come out with a win."

American Archbishop One Step Closer to Sainthood

On September 4th, 2026, Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen became the first American Born clergyman to be beatified by the Catholic Church. The Beatification Mass was held at the Dome at America's center, where he received his own feast day: December 9th. Sheen had a very large media presence in the 60s, using his fame to bring people closer to Christ. But, you need more than just popularity to be beatified. To be beatified requires a miracle. What was his miracle you might ask? Well, sixteen years ago, a baby boy, born in Goodfield, Illinois, was born without a heartbeat, and remained without a heartbeat for 61 minutes. As the paramedics moved him from home to the hospital, his parents prayed to Sheen for his intercession. Just as the doctors were about to declare him dead, the little baby gained a pulse, and is now a healthy, living miracle, as well as a reminder of the power of Jesus Christ.
