

An Invitation from Resilience Productions:

On Saturday, February 3, 2018, the Bloomington Transit System will celebrate Rosa Park's birthday. This program—a Bloomington Black History Month Celebration—highlights Rosa Parks' contributions to ending bus segregation and insuring African American civil rights. As a part of this celebration Resilience Productions presents, She Changed the Course of History: The Rosa Park's Story, written and performed by Gladys DeVane, narrated by Liz Mitchell, and directed by Danielle Bruce. The program will include remarks by Mayor Hamilton, and Jim Sims (President of the Bloomington NAACP), followed by refreshments and an exhibit of Jim Crow artifacts from the collection of Elizabeth Mitchell.

To encourage use of Bloomington's new and expanded transit system, bus rides ARE FREE ALL DAY Saturday, February 3. So please park your car, take a bus, and join us:

When: Saturday, February 3, 2018

Time: 1:00-2:30pm

Where: Bloomington City Transit Terminal

301 North Walnut Street

Bloomington, IN 47401