

Social Justice Film Series

Briars in the Cotton Patch

Sunday, March 8 at 5:00 pm

The Habitat and Racial Justice Task Forces are presenting an award-winning documentary film, Briars in the Cotton Patch, at 5 pm, Sunday, March 8 in Fellowship Hall. The one-hour film tells the nearly forgotten story of Koinonia Farm, a small Christian community in Southwest Georgia where whites and blacks chose to live and work together, despite the brutal and frightening consequences in the years leading up to the tumultuous Civil Rights era. Koinonia, considered the most daring social experiment in the South during the last century, faced years of terror, boycotts and intimidation. The film, narrated by former Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young and including comments from former President Jimmy Carter, examines events that tested the moral boundaries of a community and planted the seeds for Habitat for Humanity, The Fuller Center for Housing, and Jubilee Partners. Learn more on Koinonia Farm's website. Discussion to follow on racial equality and housing opportunities. Free pizza, popcorn, and drinks.