

Teaching Economics Using Children's Literature

FOR: Teachers and School Administrators, Grades K-6
FROM: The Purdue Center for Economic Education
DATE: Wednesday, October 9, 2019, 4:30—6:00 p.m.
WHERE: Barnes & Noble Bookstore, Lafayette
COST: Just your time

Teaching Economics using Children's Literature consists of 24 lessons that provide ideas and teaching activities to help teachers integrate economic concepts within their language arts curriculum. Teachers receive a free copy of this publication which contains classroom-tested lesson plans to use with popular children's books. A few of the books that will be covered in this workshop include: The Giving Tree, Arthur's Pet Business, Uncle Jed's Barbershop, To Market To Market, Ant Cities, The Tortilla Factory, A Chair for My Mother, The Goat in the Rug, Stone Fox, and Lunch Money.

This in-service training session includes hands-on activities, and provides teachers with a fun and active learning experience. The economic concepts taught in the lessons are identified in Indiana's Social Studies Proficiency Guide. Two PGPs will be awarded. Refreshments will also be provided.

Presented by economic educator and PCEE teacher advocate:
Mrs. Gina Boyd, Mayflower Mill Elementary School
National Board Certified and Golden Apple Teacher

This workshop takes place at Barnes & Noble (2323 Sagamore Pkwy. S., Lafayette) during their Educator Appreciation Week. The books covered in this workshop will be available, so come prepared to purchase the titles you like best, and take advantage of the special educators' discount. Save on books, games, music, café items, and more with your Barnes & Noble educator discount card, available in store.

The workshop is offered to teachers at no cost, but pre-registration is required by Noon on Tuesday, October 8th
