

Do you speak another language?

What is it like trying to understand someone who is speaking a language you do not understand?

What is it like to try and talk to someone in a language you are learning?

Language is such an important part of our identity. It's how we keep records and tell stories and while we may not have one common language that unites the planet, we all use some form of language.

Pentecost is a celebration of the breaking down of language barriers. It is about sharing the Good News of Jesus with everyone. Read Acts 2:1-21.

What would you be feeling if you heard someone speaking your language suddenly?

Imagine that you were a part of these events from Acts, what would your reaction be?

What do you think a modern-day Pentecost would look like?
