

Keeping Score: Fixing a backyard scandal

Farak's arrest on Jan. 18, 2013, came four months after Annie Dookhan was arrested for falsifying results at the Boston crime lab. Both women pleaded guilty to their misdeeds, which ultimately resulted in the dismissal of more than 61,000 drug charges involving over 37,000 cases, according to a September report from the ACLU of Massachusetts.

Crime scene company shifts to coronavirus cleanup, earns \$30M in just weeks

"It's unpredictably insane. [In] a normal two week period, we probably do about $100,000, that's an estimate, and did $30 million in two weeks" from one location, Laura Spaulding, founder and CEO of Spaulding Decon Industries Inc, told FOX Business.

Why Does OC Have a Much Lower COVID Testing Rate Than San Diego County?

"Our [crime lab] scientists, and the devices they use, could be easily relocated to the public health lab and help bolster the numbers of [tests] that could be processed," Sheriff Don Barnes said at Tuesday's Board of Supervisors meeting. "They can do the COVID-19 [testing] with a little bit of novel training."

Justice In America Episode 27: Junk Forensic Science

On this episode of Justice in America, Josie Duffy Rice and her guest co-host, Zak Cheney Rice, look at faulty forensic science.

Why Courts Still Lag Behind On Forensic Science

West himself has acknowledged problems with his previous testimony. In 2011, in a deposition in a separate case, West said the "science is not as exact as I had hoped" and suggested it should not be used in court cases.

Denim, as a Crime-Solving Tool, Has Holes

But a recent study published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences raises questions about the trustworthiness of matching jeans by their patterns of wear.