DOES YOUR ROOF NEED REPLACING?

Missing, cracked or curling shingles

- Shingles that are damaged, brittle, curling at the edges or disappearing altogether are telling you that your roof needs attention.

Bald spots or granules in the gutters

- As asphalt shingles age, they can lose their protective granules. Excessive granule loss or bare-looking areas can indicate deterioration.

A roof that looks uneven or sagging

- A noticeable dip or sag should never be ignored and deserves immediate professional attention.

Water stains inside your home

- Check ceilings, upper walls and especially the attic. Water stains, damp areas, mold or signs of moisture can indicate a roof or flashing problem.

Problems around chimneys, vents and skylights

- Damaged or deteriorated flashing around these areas can allow water to enter the home.
