A FREE COMMUNITY NEWSLETTER BRINGING YOU GOOD NEWS ABOUT WILKINSBURG

Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra Concert to Feature Mayor Garrett as Narrator

"An American Salute," a Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra's community engagement concert will fill Wilkinsburg High School's historic auditorium with patriotic music on Thursday, May 31 at 7 p.m. This is the PSO's 15th concert in the borough.

The concert will feature Wilkinsburg students, Mayor Marita Garrett as narrator, vocalist Katy Williams, and PSO principal flute Lorna McGhee.

Held a few days after Memorial Day, this program will honor our service men and women with musical selections including the Armed Forces Salute, God Bless America, and Stars and Stripes Forever. A George Gershwin Medley, Amazing Grace, and a concerto feature will round out the program—all under the direction of Conductor Andrés Franco. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for students and can be purchased at the door.

All proceeds from this concert benefit the music education programs in the Wilkinsburg School District.

Show House Benefit Opens May 5 at 1300 Wood Street

A few details of the Show House renovation in process and Brian Sieffert, the house contractor for the project.

This month, the Junior League of Pittsburgh (JLP) is showcasing its startling transformation of the old Yingling mansion interior at 1300 Wood Street in Wilkinsburg.

The JLP chose the 6,200-square-foot Georgian Revival-style mansion as its Designers' Show House, remaking more than 25 rooms and spaces.

"We are thrilled to be partnering with talented designers and landscape architects on this event, which will highlight the latest design trends while honoring the character and architecture of the historic property," said Junior League of Pittsburgh President Madeline Wahl. Each room is the responsibility of a different designer.

The history of the house begins with Roswell G. Yingling who purchased the land for the mansion in 1905, according to Carol J. Peterson, who traced the history of the home. Yingling was secretary and treasurer of the Kittanning Brick and Fire Clay Co and founder of what is now known as Clarion University.

In 1927 the family left and the building became a Wilkinsburg local

Summer Events Planned for the Borough

Wilkinsburg Borough Council and Mayor are planning a busy summer of activities for Borough residents. Final planning is underway for a variety of events and programs for the community.

The Borough is cooperating with the Wilkinsburg Community Development Corporation for the Wood St. Two-Way Street Fest May 19. (See page 4 for more information.)

The Art in the Park Concert Series will return to the Penn Avenue Parklet. The free concert series is a summer mainstay for the Borough.

Live bands and disc jockeys are featured at the newly renovated stage from 6-8:30 p.m. Watch the Borough web site, Facebook page, and Wilkinsburg Sun for information on the acts performing at Art in the Park.

The concerts coincide with the Wilkinsburg Thursday Open Market in the parking lot of LifeCare Hospital (See page 7 for more information).

The summer movie nights are back for a second year. The free movies will be held at three different parks in the Borough on the following Fridays at dusk (between 8:30 and 9 p.m.): June 15, July 13, and August 10. There will be free popcorn. Final movie selections and park locations will be announced in May.

Summer recreation will continue for its second season in June, including chess, soccer, basketball, science programs and more. (See page 5 for more information.)

The Senior “Fun Day” will also be happening throughout the summer. (See the previous page for details.)

The Mayor has announced a new date and location for the annual Community Day festivities: August 11.

The new location is the Penn Ave. Parklet and nearby parking lots. Planning is in the early stages and detail will be out in June.

The front of the stage on the third floor of the Borough Building was recently exposed after years of being covered.

The Auditorium Returns!

The Borough Council recently took steps to return the third-floor auditorium to its original purpose of a community gathering space. The third floor has been used for smaller meetings and storage over the past few decades. The false platform with library book overflow and shelving have been removed as well as thousands of unused library books. The books were donated to charity and shelving and other items offered to other libraries.

Over the summer the remaining items will be removed and some minor repairs made to allow use of the stage. A study was recently performed for renovations and funding will be sought to cover the costs. Uses are already being planned with the space, which will hold over 100 people.

Wilkinsburg Is Tree City USA

Wilkinsburg was named a 2017 Tree City USA by the Arbor Day Foundation in honor of its commitment to effective urban forest management. The Borough met the program’s four requirements: a tree board or department, a tree care ordinance, an annual community forestry budget of at least $2 per capita and an Arbor Day observance and proclamation.

“Tree City USA communities see the impact an urban forest has in a community first hand,” said Dan Lambe, president of the Arbor Day Foundation. Trees help to improve the visual appeal of a neighborhood, increase property values, reduce home cooling costs, remove air pollutants and provide wildlife habitat, among many other benefits.

Celebrating that Wilkinsburg Is Good All Over

On Saturday, May 19, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., the Wilkinsburg Community Development Corporation (WCDC) will host their second annual Two-Way Street Fest, closing off Wood St. from vehicle traffic for vendors, visitors, and residents to enjoy all of Wilkinsburg's offerings in one place.

At last year's inaugural event, over 1,000 people came together to learn about local businesses and organizations, sample food and drink, participate in outdoor activities, interact with artists, and enjoy live music and performances. With over 80 businesses promising to participate in this year's event, the WCDC expects another fantastic turnout.

In addition to local businesses, food trucks, and other vendors, Fest activities will include a slate of live performances, including steel pan drummers, Barrels to Beethoven, Brazilian percussion group, Timbeleza, professional dance trainers, KTheatre Dance Complex, and more. Attendees can also spend the day learning to skateboard, rock climb, pogo, and slackline.

New, through a partnership with Wilkinsburg Historical Society, those interested in something more low key can participate in a walking tour in the business district to learn more about Wilkinsburg's unique history and architecture.

Though Wilkinsburg continues to face many challenges, including high rates of vacancy, blight, and tax delinquency, the community's strengths and opportunities are equally substantial. The WCDC created the Two-Way Street Fest to celebrate Wilkinsburg and highlight these strengths and assets, from accessibility and historic architecture to a strong business community and dedicated residents.

Fest attendees can visit the WCDC's table to learn more about community initiatives and current projects, like the Wilkinsburg Train Station. Last year, residents, visitors, and alumni rallied together around the WCDC's Train Station Restoration Project. The project will restore the more than 100-year-old Train Station building on Hay Street that once served as a bustling center for workers and travelers. The end goal is to create a community-focused space, perhaps with a restaurant and/or cafe on the main floor and retail and/or office space on the lower level.

The flood of support for the Train Station Restoration Project—the WCDC has already raised $3.5 million toward the project and Phase II of construction is now underway—shows that the community of Wilkinsburg values its past history, its present community, and its future progress.

The Two-Way Street Fest will celebrate this community, and the people and places that make Wilkinsburg good all over. For more information, visit bit.ly/TWSF2018 or call 412.727.7855.

hospital, then Miller Convalescent Home and, most recently, the Gibbs Personal Care Home. The property was purchased by Nicole Santella in 2016.

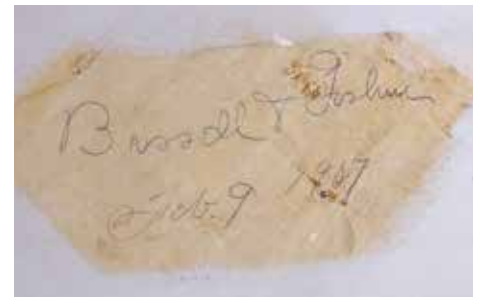

Santella bought the house with the intention of using it to strengthen connections in the community. She hopes it to be a gathering place for people of all ages, where she can hold meetings and educational events.

"When you start turning lights on, other people start turning lights on," she said of her desire for the house to be a beacon of renewal.

All proceeds from the show, entitled "Window into Wilkinsburg," will go directly to support the JLP's mission of working with the surrounding communities to eliminate food insecurity in the East End.

Helping Borough Trees to Thrive

Wilkinsburg's Shade Tree Committee offers suggestions on how residents can help out the street trees bordering their homes in a way that allows these valuable plants to thrive.

The tree pit—the area of dirt and mulch in which the tree is planted—should be well-maintained to provide optimal health of street trees.

Things to Do

Keep the tree pit clear of plastics or trash which would otherwise prevent rainwater from getting to the tree roots.

Pull weeds growing in the tree pit since they will compete with the tree for water and nutrients.

Prevent vines from growing in the tree pit or climbing up the tree. Vines harm the tree, including common groundcover vines like English ivy, myrtle, and pachysandra. Other vines to keep off the tree are Virginia creeper and grapevine. Pull vines out by the roots if they've already started growing in the tree pit. If they already have woody roots and stems, cut them off at the base using sharp pruning shears, then watch for regrowth and repeat the procedure.

Things Not to Do

Don't use pesticides to kill weeds or vines in the tree pit. This could harm the tree.

Don't prune Borough trees if you see a broken or dead branch.

Don't touch poison ivy if that's the vine growing on the tree. Poison ivy is recognizable by its leaves which grow in clusters of three. Another indicator is the hairy stalk of the vine.

Report any street tree problems to the Borough at 412.244.2900 or fill out a service request form at <https://www.wilkinsburgpa.gov/community-resources/service-request-form/>.

Residents with concerns about trees or who are interested in knowing more about the Shade Tree Committee should consider attending one of its meetings on the fourth Wednesday of the month at 6:30 p.m. in the Borough Building. All are welcome.

The Bible Chapel Introduces Youth and Sports Director

The Bible Chapel in Wilkinsburg has announced their new Director of Youth and Sports Ministry, Jaakan "Jay" Thompson.

Jay received a degree in Christian ministry and pastoral leadership from a Bible college in Chicago and has a heart to disciple youth in an urban context and looks forward to working with the church.

"Life is a journey, and in this season of my life, God has allowed me to come and serve the community of Wilkinsburg. I am both humbled by this opportunity and excited to see what God does in the years to come," said Jay.

He and his wife, Jessica, have a daughter, Jonelle, and another child on the way.

The Bible Chapel's Wilkinsburg campus is located at 754 Ross Avenue. The youth group meets Wednesday, May 9, 6–8 p.m. and is for students grade 5–12. A young adults gathering meets Thursday, May 3 and 17, at 6:30 p.m.

Local Artist Dee Briggs Highlighted in Art Festival

Dee Briggs' installation in Foley Square: New York, N.Y.

Wilkinsburg's Dee Briggs, known for her impressive geometric metal sculptures, will be a featured artist at this year's Dollar Bank Three Rivers Arts Festival.

Six Plates For Annabelle And Maggie, a sculpture based on the concept of chirality—the operation of symmetry and mirror images in geometric shapes—will be installed at the Gateway T station, and on view through May 2019.

The piece is made of Cor-Ten weathering steel and was fabricated at Wheaton and Sons in Braddock. And that, in part, is where the name of her sculpture is derived.

"This particular piece was made primarily by a welder named Paul Jasinski....It was Paulie's skill, intelligence and, well, patience with me and some of the crazy things I wanted to do that really made this piece possible," explained Briggs.

"Annabelle and Maggie are Paul's daughters. I named this sculpture after them to thank Paulie for his hard work and dedication to making something like this so beautifully."

Briggs, whose studio resides in an old Wilkinsburg firehouse in the Park Triangle section, said that she always works with local suppliers and fabricators to source the steel for her projects. She feels strongly about buying U.S. steel and supporting the national economy.

"Although it is more expensive than imported steel, it is consistently of a higher and predictable quality." In addition Briggs explained, "The environmental impact is lower because the United States, at least right now, has higher environmental standards for steel production than many other countries."

When asked how to best view her large scale sculpture, Briggs answered, "For me personally, I do not think that my intentions or what I put into the work or what the work means to me needs to be relevant to someone else. Someone who has had more experience with art might relate my work to other art, but someone who has had more experience with steel, for instance, might relate my work to their thoughts and feeling about steel. Every art work is a different experience for every viewer.

Briggs added, "I encourage anyone looking at art to focus on how the work makes you feel—instead of trying to figure out what the art work 'means.'"
