Colin Comer's extensive and wide range of automotive knowledge has made him one of the foremost experts in the collector car hobby. The founder of Colin's Classic Automobiles in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Colin is also a prolific automotive author with numerous critically acclaimed and award-winning books to his credit including "Shelby Mustang Fifty Years" and "Shelby Cobra Fifty Years"- the latter which was named the "Greatest Car Book Of All Time" by Esquire magazine. His latest title "Shelby American 60 Years Of High Performance" has just been released. Colin's writing has also appeared in everything from the New York Times to USA Today and has served as a long time Editor for Road & Track, Editor-at-Large for Sports Car Market and American Car Collector magazines. Having restored and prepared cars for shows and driving events worldwide Colin has also been a Judge at the Pebble Beach Concours, as well as fifteen years at the Milwaukee Concours d'Elegance, the last four of which he served as Chief Judge. This, combined with Colin's 35+ years of restoring cars, has created a keen awareness of both sides of the car-collecting fence. In his spare time Colin enjoys maintaining his own impressive car collection, as well as being an accomplished racer and pilot. He lives in River Hills, Wisconsin with his wife Cana and their daughter Remington and son Briggs, the latter who has recently begun moving up the kart racing ladder to which Colin says is good because "as a racer he'll never have enough money for drugs."
