Keith Richter is a professional social worker who's passionate about nature photography. After honing his skill for many years he's broken through recently and exhibited work at the Creative Arts Workshop and the "Images" show in Guilford. He's been a member of the New Haven Camera Club and has been taking classes with Phyliss Crowley at Creative Arts Workshop for 3 years.

As the photographic historian of the New Haven Bioregional Group, Maria Tupper has been walking, canoeing, and bicycling in our local area for over 10 years taking pictures of our life place. Time behind the camera lens has opened her eyes to our local area in a new light. She has had several photography shows in the New Haven area.
