Dr. David Callaway is a Professor of Emergency Medicine at Atrium Health in Charlotte, NC where he is Chief of Disaster Medicine in the Department of Emergency Medicine. Dr. Callaway is Navy Veteran who served with the United States Marine Corps in Iraq, Burma, and El Salvador. He is the father of Elizabeth and Lilianna, two princess warriors, and husband of Dr. Jennifer Callaway. He has an unrelenting drive to improve his community and a “healthy distaste for the status quo”.

Dr. Callaway subscribes to the idea that crisis offers opportunity. As an Eisenhower Fellow in 2014, he investigated the health and security impacts of Syrian refugees on Jordanian civil society. Currently, he is working to mobilize U.S. combat Veterans to engage in community service projects focused on social justice. David’s extensive work in health and crisis recently led to his appointment as Chief Medical Officer for Team Rubicon and as a life member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Currently, Dr. Callaway leads the Emergency Medicine COVID-19 Nerve Center and is involved in Atrium Health’s crisis surge capacity planning.
