Colorado educators now have access to a free, interactive training on the role Extreme Risk Protection Orders (ERPOs) play within the threat prevention framework at schools.

This two-part training was developed by the Colorado Office of the Attorney General and Safe2Tell to help educators identify warning signs and outlines practical steps to prevent potential gun violence.

The first module covers how to respond when concerns arise about a student's risk of harming themselves or others, including the role of threat assessment teams and ERPOs. The second module dives into the technical process of filing for an ERPO.

Each 30-minute module features real-life scenarios, case studies, and downloadable tools to empower school staff with actionable knowledge. Access the training anytime on COTRAIN \(link opens in new tab\)—and help keep our schools safe.
