Rev. Gladys Lariba Mahama comes from the Upper East Region of Ghana where she serves as minister-In-charge of the Fumbisi congregation of the Presbyterian Church of Ghana, Upper Presbytery. Her ministry with women has been focused on an association for widows (Asungtaba) and a project working for the reintegration of women identified as "witches" back into their families (the Go Home Project). She is currently serving as the board chairperson for the Nalerigu Cooperative Credit Union and as coordinator for women's ministry in Upper Presbytery. She is a widow with four children.

She will be focusing on:

- Peacemaking in the PCUSA and the world
- Highlights from her work with Women in Ghana
- What drew her to peacemaking and why she thinks it makes a difference/impact for God's work in the world
