Scheduled speakers include:

Linda Alvarado, co-owner of Major League Baseball's Colorado Rockies, will be one of the featured speakers at the event. Ms. Alvarado, born in Albuquerque, is also President and Chief Executive Officer of Alvarado Construction, Inc., a large firm in Denver that builds multi-million dollar facilities such as high-rise hotels, sports arenas and convention centers. Alvarado was the first Latino (male or female) to become owner of a Major League Baseball team.

Drew Dudley, founder of Day One Leadership, has spoken on five continents and has been featured on The Huffington Post, Radio America and TED.com, where his "TED Talk" was voted one of the 15 most inspirational TED Talks of all time.

Michelle DuVal, owner and founder of The Mindful Center, has been a keynote speaker and trainer at dozens of major events. She has been providing mindfulness trainings in corporate settings for over 15 years.

Dr. Marcus "Goodie" Goodloe, travels the country mentoring business professionals, athletes, entertainers, students, educators and faith communities on a range of issues including cultural and interpersonal relationships, leadership, teamwork and faith.

Randy Mascarella, is the Executive Director of Special Olympics New Mexico, and has devoted her career to impacting people's lives through sports. She leads 3,300 athletes and more than 6,000 volunteers at Special Olympics New Mexico, and serves on committees for Special Olympics North America.

Dr. Garnett S. Stokes, the first female president in the 129-year history of the University of New Mexico, has served in a variety of leadership roles at the University of Missouri, Florida State University and the University of Georgia.

Dr. Katharine Winograd, in her 12th year as president of Central New Mexico

Community College, was named Western Region CEO of the Year in 2013 by the Association of Community College Trustees, the same year CNM won the national Student Success Award from the American Association of Community Colleges.

Each speaker will share their unique personal story and leadership experiences, opening a window into how they think about ethics and the ethical challenges they face in their workplace.
