

11th Annual Whole Grains for Growing Brains

A mom of three young Denver Public Schools students has been viciously attacked in a most unspeakably brutal domestic violence incident. She is left homeless and unable to work to provide for her boys. Through her determination and the help of the DPS Homeless Education Network, this family of four is desperately trying to get back on their feet, and they need your help. From now through Friday, October 14th, you can purchase donation loaves of Honey Whole Wheat Bread for $6.25 per loaf from the Great Harvest Bread Co. of Denver at 765 South Colorado Boulevard, Denver, CO 80209 (303-778-8877). The loaves purchased will be baked by the Denver South High School boy's soccer C team on Saturday, October 15th. The bread pre-purchased will be distributed to the homeless shelters where this family and others in the program temporarily reside. In addition, 100% of the donation sales dollars (not just the profit, every penny in sales taken in) will be donated to the DPS Homeless Education Network who supports these families. Details of this event are available here: Whole Grains for Growing Brains 2016. Denver South H.S. boy's soccer assistant coach, owner of the Great Harvest Bread Co. of Denver and father of four DPS students, Matt Salis, is available to answer your questions and take your donations at 303-204-1412 and denver@greatharvest.com or live in the bakery from 6am to 3pm M-F and 7am-2pm Saturdays. Please help us spread the word, and thanks for your support!
