Don't miss out!

Chris Wheatley

Creating a culture where feedback is freely given and received can jumpstart any organization's productivity and contribute to healthy, trusting, and high-performing teams. Too often we tolerate poor performance or fail to effectively recognize excellence, and it's costing us. In this workshop, you'll learn how to create a culture of consistent, clear, and actionable feedback that supports and challenges your team.

Jessica Bonar

Wearing the badge of Single Mom with a Mortgage, Jessica is a DO-ER! The Strengths Finder calls her an Activator which means she is at the ready to make a decision and then embark IMMEDIATELY on the charge to make stuff happen! She is a professional businesswoman in a male dominated industry, but this is not a new gender ratio for her as she played on the boy's water polo team for her high school as there was no girls team at the time. Jessica trusts that her willingness to be honest and vulnerable offer her deep, meaningful, and authentic relationships in work, family, friendship, and her community.

Skyler Oberst

Skyler has been working with civic and community leaders in the Pacific Northwest for more than ten years. He developed his groundbreaking and award-winning video-series Meet the Neighbors, which uses a unique mix of interactive social media and community events to foster collaboration and community building. The project's success has led to franchises across the globe and partnerships with the US State Department. It has been listed as a Promising Practice for interfaith work by Harvard University.

Skyler speaks on building community and breaking barriers to create meaningful and lasting relationships.
