Tomatoes
Variety	Description
What's the difference between "indeterminate" and "determinate" tomatoes?	Determinate tomatoes, or "bush" tomatoes, are varieties that grow to a compact height (generally 3 - 4'). Determinates growth slows as the fruit sets. Tomatoes from the plant ripen at approximately the same time (usually over a few weeks). They require a limited amount of staking for support and are perfectly suited for container planting. Indeterminate tomatoes will grow and produce fruit until killed by frost. They can reach heights of up to 12 feet although 6 feet is normal. Indeterminate plants will bloom, set new fruit, and ripen fruit all at the same time providing fresh tomatoes throughout the season. They require staking for support.
Orange Wellington 	Beautiful Orange color that Bursts with flavor Here's a tomato you'll want to have with dinner, lunch or as an occasional snack. Tipping the scales at 12 oz., this smooth, orange heavyweight is plump with firm, dense, meaty, nearly seedless flesh. Blossoms and fruit develop progressively; the harvest lasts several months. Indeterminate. 75 days
