

Explore Mentorship as a Resident or Fellow

The Faculty Mentor Directory connects you with faculty members who share experiences, offer career guidance, and support your academic growth.

Through Mentorship, You Can:

- Learn more about careers in academic medicine
- Gain insight into faculty roles and responsibilities
- Receive guidance on career planning and professional development
- Build relationships with faculty across specialties and disciplines
- Expand your professional network
- Explore research, teaching, leadership, and service opportunities
- Connect with mentors who share similar interests, experiences, or identities

What to Expect

Mentorship relationships are flexible and tailored to each resident or fellow's interests and career goals. Some mentorship connections may involve a single conversation, while others may continue over time. Topics may include:

- Academic career planning
- Research and scholarship
- Teaching and medical education
- Leadership development
- Faculty recruitment and promotion
- Work life integration
- Professional networking
- Preparing a CV and academic portfolio
- Publishing and presenting scholarly work
- Navigating challenges and building confidence

How It Works

1. Complete the Resident and Fellow Physician Interest Form.
2. Review the Faculty Mentor Directory provided to trainees upon submission.
3. Identify one or more faculty mentors whose interests align with your goals.
4. Reach out directly to introduce yourself and request a meeting.
5. Work with your mentor to establish goals, expectations, and a communication plan that fits your needs.

Resident and Fellow Commitment

- Take initiative in reaching out to mentors
- Come prepared with questions and discussion topics
- Communicate professionally and respectfully
- Be open to feedback and guidance
- Follow through on agreed upon action items and meetings
- Express appreciation for mentors' time and support
